What is MNN?

Manhattan Neighborhood Network (MNN) is a non-profit organization that broadcasts programming on four public access stations in Manhattan. Our diverse shows include but aren't limited to news, talk shows, interviews, debates, documentaries, travelogues, live music, and sketch comedy. Our programs range from local to international in scope, and reach up to 3 million viewers around Manhattan. Broadcasting more than 1200 active shows in 20 languages, 24 hours a day, MNN programming reflects the diverse communities that make up our borough. We also stream all our programming live online at www.mnn.org; many of our shows now reach a national and international audience. Sometimes controversial, always gritty and real, MNN is the pulse of New York City, because our programming is made by and for New Yorkers.

Workshops and Facilities: MNN offers free workshops in television production for Manhattan residents and special group workshops for non-profit organizations based in Manhattan. Individuals and groups that have completed requisite training are also able to use the studios and pre- and post-production equipment for public access programs. Find out more about training or studios and equipment at www.mnn.org/producers.

Community Media: Serving non-profit community organizations such as community groups, labor groups, arts centers, and social justice organizations. We offer media planning and consultation, free training, grants, and even assisted productions for organizations all around Manhattan. Community Media Grants are available to assist Manhattan non-profit organizations and individuals to provide training and support for community video productions. MNN works with organizations to foster dialogue that is responsive to the needs of the community. Please visit the Grants page to learn more www.mnn.org/com

Youth Media: Youth Channel is a division of Manhattan Neighborhood Network serving young people below the age of 25. Established in 2000, MNN Youth Channel aims to give youth from all backgrounds, the opportunities to create community media, foster dialogue, and engage in social activism. CHUCK'S PICKS

"The Walter Banks Network," approaching its second decade, is an absolute classic. Banks writes, hosts and edits the show, a space drama involving humans of the past, present and future (Abe Lincoln is among them) and their alien counterparts. The style is fragmented, as voice overs and jump cuts appear almost at random, audio and video are frequently mismatched, etc. The resulting universe is cold and vaguely threatening, which is not a surprise since this started as a boxing show! Tune in every Friday at 5 PM on MNN3.
